Masterly Presentation of Vital Issues in the Presentation of Vital Issues Issues Issues In Test learned was bounded in the delusion.

One fine morning in May the bubble burst, the whole pile of brick fell in on each other, and there was a universal crash. Rain and bankruptey followed, and years of stagnation, depression and distress. The paper cities were wiped out even on paper, and their broad acres sold for a mere song. That was the end of the memorable panic of 1837. In 1873 we had not memorable panic of 1837, we had nimmons which is send inasmuch as the orator of that memorable occasion now occupies the high position of a Presidential candidate, his remarks to oun neighbors at so recent a period as last fall must be a matter of deep interest to the people of this region and to the public generally. We therefore reproduce our synopsis of his speech, as it appeared in the InterLIGENCER of the 15th of September, 1879, as follows:

The meeting was organized by a call to order from Mayor McConnaughy, of Bridger of the proper was organized by a call to order from Mayor McConnaughy, of Bridge out who provided the proper was one security. It has been been under inflation and it gets bigger and more beautiful, and it is a present when provided the proper was provided to the content of the care was a universal distress. The proper was a present and No better eathertic can be used prepara-bry to, or after taking quinine. As a simple purgative they are unequaled. The genuine are never signr-coated.

order from Mayor McConnaughy, of Bridge port, who nominated Levis Jones, Esq. of the Ætna Iron Works, for President which nomination was endorsed by a loud "aye" from the great throng in attend-ance. After a couple of songs from the Ætna Glee Club, (excellent ones too) and a piece of good music from the Martin's Ferry brass band, General Garfield put in his appearance along with Congressman Updegraff, of Mt. Pleasant, and Dr. Todd, of Bridgeport. The General has been overworked in this canvass, and his voice was husky before he commenced speaking out after he got underway and warmed to his work this huskiness disappeared, and he was heard without difficulty by nost of the great gathering. General Garfield is a man of fine presence—a little bove the average heighth—rather portly— large and fine balanced head—an oper nd pleasing face, lit up by a pair o arge and expressive eves; a full, round, ell modulated and engaging expression of voice; a self-possessed manner, and a clear articulation of his words. It was easy to see that he is no ordinary man He is in every sense a good type of the Scholar in Politics. All his utterances are cultivated and high toned. He has a nost excellent fancy and a keen sense of numor. He knows how to phrase his houghts to the nicest shade of expression, numor. He knows now to pursae his thoughts to the nicest shade of expression, and now to broaden them out to the apprehension of the dullest intellect. In short, he is an orator, a scholar, a statesman and a gentleman. His first remark was to the effect that the present canvass involved a conteat between the ideas of a dead and barbaric past in the history of the republic, and of a living and progressive present, between men who are striving to galvanize into life and power theories of our Govenment that were shot to pieces on the battlefield of the war, and those who were striving to move on to the grand possibilities of the future. The Democratic party is seeking to turn back the hands on the dial plate of progress, while the Republican party seeks to go forward in the logical direction of the results of the war. He thanked God that his lot had been cast in a party that believes in something: that had promething that promising a processive processive processive to the search of the search of the search of the progressive processive that the believes in something: that had properlies of the processive processive processive processive processive processive that the library in something: that processive sults of the war. He thanked God that bis lot had been cast in a party that be-lieves in something; that holds principles that have been tested in the crucible of war and not found wanting; that has a record that does not smell to heaven when it is uncovered; that has ideas that commend themselves to the approval of the sober second thought of the people, and that from out the distresses of the panic and the din of Demoratic demonstration.

and the din of Democratic demagoguery have again come to the front for approval at the ballot box. He thanked God that he belonged to a party that did not bemire itself in the mud after the panic in order country were in ruins. This is the histo-ry and the explanation of the panic of 1873.

THE MONEY POWER. During the dark days that have succeded the panic the Democratic leaders have gone through the country inflaming the minds of the people against what they call and the dis of Democratic demanogery at the Money Fower. Now I want to any at the ballot box. Its thanked God that he belonged too. It thanked God the belonged too. It thanked God the belonged too a party that did not belong to the belonged too a party that did not belong to the belonged too any too all human experience that out of samp-black and rass, in the shape of paper money, a substitute for the control of the belong the property of the belong the property of the belong the the Money Power. Now I want to say a few words on this head. You have been

Call or send for the self-cure and be restored to me here. I see the light of fiaming furhashin, Strength and Energy; it never falls. Enclose the light of the clang of reanimated the effects of panic as much as any class of stamps for tree advice on delicate matters.

Salahaw industry. I find it so wherever I go. I pead calls for more men in all the newspapers. Wages are advancing because of the actual scarcity of laborers. The great works of the country are full of orders for the latest scarcity of laborers. The great works of the country are full of orders for the reason with freight. American commerce is alive again on all the seas. Is all this bogus? Is it all a mere insubstantial delusion? The Democratic leaders would have you believe it is. And the reason they would have you so believe is that they prophesied that ruin would come instead of prosperity with specie payments, and now their only chance of success is to deceive and delude you into the idea that all that you see and all you read is a sham and a fraud. To such straits as these is the Democratic party of to-day driven in order to ward off their impending defeat.

I recognize that we cannot be a nation of farmers, nor of swine-herders, as these men would make us. Protection was a won for this meantificant recognize that the control of the contr and where the travel and traffic would not pay the wages of one brakeman on the whole line. In this way we buried in the ground nine hundred millions of capital whole line. In this way we buried in the ground nine hundred millions of capital—sunk it out of sight and out of use—when one hundred millions would have been ample for all our needs.

And in addition to this waste of capital in railroads, we fell to building mills of all kinds. We over-excited the development of ores, the development of people into the over-production of iron, glass, and cotton and woolen goods. Men subscribed their hundreds and thousands of capital to countless forms of machinery, and when the bubble burst they lost it all, and were thrown helpless and dependent upon their labor when there was no labor for them to do. Jay Cooke's failure burst the bubble, and again one brick fell against two bubble, and again one brick fell against two bushes. men would make us. Protection was principle of government dear to our fathers. Do you know that one of the greatest underlying causes of the Revolution—of the separation from Great Britain—was the attempt of England to do tion—of the separation from Great Britain—was the attempt of England to do just what the Southern brigadiers attempted in the last Congress—to make us all tillers of the soil; to prevent diversity, to keep down skilled labor, and make us wholly dependent on her for our iron, our glass, our clothing, our furniture, our ships; in fine, for everything we needed outside of our daily bread. They passed a bill through Parliament that no furnaces should be erected in America, and that no tree fit for ship building, of two feet in diameter above the ground, should be cut down; that no wool should be transported from one colony to another; that no sailor should buy more than one suit in our ports, that no carrying should be done except in a British built ship. They prescribed severe penalties for the infraction of these laws. They intended to make our forefathery mere hewers of wood and drawers of water for their own aggrandizement. And these repressive and oppressive laws were the prime causes that led to the Revolution of 1776. And it was the remembrance of them that led our fathers as soon as they formed our government to proceed at once to the enactment of a protective policy. The ninth bill introduced into the first American Congress—a bill framed by James Madison, of Virginia—was a bill to encourage and protect American industry against the competition of Europe. Our fathers wanted a country for them to do. Jay Cooke's failure burst the bubble, and again one brick fell against another, until half the industries of the demagogues. Are we to turn society into choose and make men communists? Is every idler, every waster, every unproductive member of society to be clothed with the right to come to every man who labors and saves and demand of him a division of his savings. If so, pandemonium has come, and there is an end to civilization. And yet the Democratic leaders have been at work inculcating these nefarious principles among the people during the dark days of the panic. And now we bring them at the politic opinion to answer for such communities and anarchical sentiments.

At this point a Welshman in the audience sung out something about condemning them at the politic, General Garfield residual to the condense of the saving of the condense and this point a Weldoman in the audit means and the point a weldom and in the audit means and the man and a fired to the country their segment of the reason they would leave and of property with period party of the search period of the reason they would leave and of property with period party of the search period of the reason they would leave and of property with period party with peri

Loud and prolonged cheers followed the conclusion of Gen. Garfield's speech. Our report does not begin to do it justice. It was interspersed with many rounds of applause, and produced a profound impression on the great audience that listened to it.
